

Be Still

Whether or not you have the opportunity for summer vacation, there is always an interior pause and stillness that we all require. Even some vacations can be so frantic that they do not really afford us the “re-creation” we need. This meditation from author and spiritual director Father Ignacio Larranaga may provide us with insight into the true and ever-present path toward genuine refreshment and renewal.

“How good it is to pause!
Lord, I would like to slow down right now.
Why so much commotion?
Why so much frenzy?
I do not know how to stop.
I have forgotten how to pray.
Now I close my eyes and I wish to talk to you, Lord.
I wish to open up myself to your universe,
but my eyes cannot bear to stay closed.
I feel frantic agitation invade my body;
it comes and goes, a prisoner of haste.
Lord, I would like to stop right now.
Why such a hurry?
Why such unrest?
I cannot save the world.

I am merely a drop of water
in the immense ocean of your marvelous creation.
What is really important is to seek your presence.
What is really important is to stop from time to time
and to proclaim your greatness, your beauty,
your splendor and your love.
What is urgent is to listen to you and to let you speak within me, to live in the depth of things and to take the time to look constantly for you in the silence of your mystery.

My heart continues to beat, but in a different way.
I am doing nothing, I am not hurrying.
I am simply before you, Lord.
And how good it is to be before you. Amen.”

*Have a blessed and peaceful week,
