I am the good shepherd the good shepherd giveth his life
for the sheep.

John 10:11

THE GOOD SHEPHERD

Jesus was among those who idealized shepherds; it is clear that no real shepherd would leave the remainder of the flock unprotected while he went off in search of the stupid stray.

It is not a commercially viable proposition to risk the whole flock for a single sheep. Furthermore, even if we accept the image, we have to note that carrying the strayed sheep back to the flock on his own shoulders was not a sign of affection: it was the most efficient way of rejoining the flock. Jesus used this impossible image to portray the extravagant and effective love that God has for all. God will seek out the lost and bring them back.

St John notes that there is a deep interpersonal connection between the shepherd and the sheep; he knows them, and they recognize and respond to his voice. Christ as shepherd is not merely one who exercises external control over the flock, but one who has a deep understanding of each of those entrusted to his care. He knew what was in their hearts. Jesus leads his flock through connaturality—we follow him because he is one of us, like us in all things except sin.

But there is more—an even wilder assertion. So greatly does this shepherd care about the sheep that he is prepared to die in their place. No ordinary shepherd would willingly do this. We have passed beyond human affairs into a totally different world of values. The extravagance of divine love is such that surpasses our understanding. “Understand the love God has for us in that Christ died for us while we were still sinners.” Divine love far exceeds anything we call by that name: it is proactive, unconditional, intense, and all-embracing. We can catch only glimmers of its total extent.
